

BRETT A. VIRGIN, CFP®

Vice President of Executive Benefits

Advising businesses since 1997, Brett provides creative insurance planning solutions for companies and their executive teams. As Vice President of Executive Benefits for The Pinnacle Group, he works in conjunction with top financial advisors throughout the country regarding multi-life and supplemental disability insurance plans specifically for executive teams. Brett leads the plan design, implementation and on-going administration of these plans for businesses throughout the country.

Brett graduated with a double major in Economics and Journalism from Indiana University in Bloomington, Indiana. He earned the CFP® designation in 2002 after graduating from Oglethorpe University's Financial Planner Program. In 2018, he earned the mark of Certified BBQ Judge (CBJ) through the Kansas City Barbeque Society.

He is dedicated to community and business involvement through active participation in many organizations. He currently serves the Advisory Board of the Honorary Commanders Alumni Association as well as the Board of Directors of the Georgia Employers Association. Brett spent 10+ years as a member of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce's board and served one year as an officer. Brett has dedicated years to volunteering with the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society and in 2011 was nominated for Atlanta's Man of the Year.

Currently Brett lives in Atlanta with his wife and children. When not working for his clients he enjoys boating, fishing, cooking and judging BBQ competitions.
